

Check before you publish

A practical checklist from our real website-pronunciation repair.

1. Listen

Play names, numbers and web addresses at normal speed. Write spoken addresses as "Steve Toti dot com slash tools". Keep URLs normally formatted on screen.

2. Read

Match captions to the final audio, not an older script. After changing a sentence, review its spelling, timing and line breaks.

3. Look

Check the opening, every repair and the ending. If new audio does not match mouth movements, use a relevant screenshot or real demonstration.

4. Follow

Open the actual link. Does the destination offer what the video promises? Check instructions and any name, email or consent requirements.

5. Review the complete master

Technical decoding is only one check. Watch and listen to the complete finished video. Ask someone to explain the next step back to you.
